

Health 2020 for Rural Population with a Special Attention on Increasing Diversity of Rural Regions' Population and its Health, Public Health, Occupational Health Impacts

Conference of the International Association of Rural Health and Medicine (IARM) in cooperation with the University of Pécs Medical School and WHO Regional Office in Europe

Date and place:

24-26 August 2020, University of Pécs Medical School, Hungary

Language:

dominantly English

Credit value: 18 credits (for Hungarian professionals only)

Provisional program:

Keynote speeches (English):

WHO: Health 2020 for rural population – an overview

Country level reports:

Japan, South-Korea, India, Germany, Italy, Sweden, Hungary

Parallel sections

- Primary Health Care in rural regions
 - Subsections:
 - Organization of primary health care in rural, remote regions
 - Pediatric Care in rural regions,
 - Immunization of rural population;
- Health Status and Access to Healthcare for Migrants Living in Rural Areas
 - Provision of Interculturally competent Health and Social Care in rural regions
 - Mental health challenges in rural areas with diverse population
 - Occupational- health and diversity
- Ethnic Minorities Living in Rural Areas- with a special focus on Roma population
- Ageing in Rural Areas: challenges and good practices
- Health Promotion, Health Education in remote villages
- Challenges of Pharmaceutical Supply in rural regions
- The Role of NGOs in Assisting the health of rural population